

When: 7pm, 14 August

Where: Community Trust of Southland Board Room, entry through the back door, 62 Don Street

Who: Dr Angela Wanhalla, Department of History and Art History, University of Otago

What: Kāi Tahu women in southern shore whaling worlds

The lecture will explore the shore whaling station as a site of cultural encounter, specifically focusing on the important role Kāi Tahu women played in helping establish this industry. As wives and companions to whalers who managed homes and domestic economies, worked on gardens, cultivated potatoes, wove baskets, gathered food and scraped flax, women engaged in vital economic activities that supported the external trade associated with stations, but also sustained the communities themselves.

If you are able/interested to circulate this to your members the Heritage South Trust would love to see them there.

South Invercargill air quality workshop

I just wanted to take this opportunity to remind you about our air quality workshop being held tomorrow Tuesday 31 July 2018 from 2pm-4.30pm (including afternoon tea) at the Pacific Island Advisory and Cultural Trust, 135 Bowmont Street, Invercargill.

We are really thrilled that you have expressed an interest in attending as we believe you can provide valuable insight and perspectives, as we work towards improving air quality as part of our pilot South Invercargill project.

The workshop will be the second of two we have held during our joint project with crown research agency, ESR and will provide an opportunity for a wide range of organisations to contribute to the discussion.

If, for some reason, you are unable to attend, you are more than welcome to send somebody else from your team or please let us know if you would like any further information.

We look forward to seeing you tomorrow.
